From the dirt roads of nowhere in Arizona, where I grew up on a family farm not a stone's throw from the river, to the open plains of North Dakota, I hope to foster the small-town feel of Dickinson that I've already come to love. Whether it's connecting with a rancher on their acreage outside of town or attending the latest community gathering, I am ecstatic to share updates on the happenings in our community. By doing so, I aim to become a valued member of the historic communities that adorn the beautiful land we call home.
